(10 Miles southwest of Perth)

Dunning Memorial to Maggie Wall. At this spot in the year 1657 Maggie Wall was burnt as a witch. There is no official record of her death but there was an anti-witch mania here in the 17th century. Likely the shameful event was hushed up. Now the local women whiten the lettering on the memorial each year and leave a wreath with a card inscribed, "In Memory of Maggie Wall, Burnt by the Church in the name of Christianity".

There is a mystery as to who Maggie Wall was. Several accounts exist of Dunning women being strangled, burnt or drowned as witches, but there is no mention of a Maggie Wall.
